Dear Professor Thuring:

It was most kind of you to take the trouble to write me concerning "Society and Survival in spite of your distressing illness.

It is good to note that your command of written English is quite unaffected.

I vividly remember the stimulus of your thinking at the "Penguin" meeting in Baden in 1959. Many are now following in your footsteps, as I'm sure you discovered at the Chicago meeting. With you, I feel that reform of education deserves the
