

111 B 35-2635
ERIC T. B. GROSS, E.E., D.Sc.

CONSULTING ENGINEER

March 26, 1961.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS: CLEARBROOK 3-4630
CHICAGO: CALUMET 5-9600

210 SO. STRATFORD ROAD
ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILL.

Dear Professor Thirring,

I was happy to learn from Fejer, as well as from your letter of March 22, that everything is settled to your satisfaction, and we are looking forward to picking you up at the O'Hare airport on Sunday, April 16. If you can arrange to come in the afternoon - or earlier, whatever is most convenient - we will be glad to try and arrange for a few people to meet you here at our house.

Perhaps it would be best for you to call here from Boston so that we can learn at an early date what final travel arrangements you have made. You will find me at home in the evening (except on Friday when I have a lecture) and I would suggest that you call any time after 6 p.m. Boston Time, with reversed charges (collect), person to person, asking for me at the Arlington Heights number as given above.

I have tried for some time to get your book accepted by one of these "Book clubs", but without much success. I was surprised to hear of a "revision", since there have not been any very important changes in the recent past which would make such revision mandatory. I do not know Mr. Svirsky either, and can only assume that he may have had some dealings with the publisher in Bloomington. It will do no harm if you try and talk to Mr. Svirsky, and I shall be glad to follow up later.

I trust that you will have good speed on your trip; copy of this letter will be sent to your hotel in Boston, just in case it does not reach you at your house in Kitzbühel. Kindest regards.

Very sincerely,

E. B. Gross